

pineapple peel. Cover with a flannel and let it rest at 30°C for 15 days or when it forms a thick layer in the surface. This layer I will call the MICROBIOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION.

PROPAGATION OF THE MICROBIOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION: In a container use 2 kilograms of the MICROBIOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION and add 17.5 liters of the black tea previously prepared, let the mixture rest for 7 days at 30°C, obtaining a liquid and a solid mass containing the propagated MICROBIOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION ready for strengthen the medicinal herb's therapeutic qualities using several proprietary methods.

The obtained liquid and solid will be used in fermentation of medicinal herbs with other therapeutic qualities.

The previous description is offered as an example to illustrate the preferred method to realize the procedure, but not intended to limit the reach of this invention to what I have described, but to claim any method following the principles described to produce the mentioned results.